

We believe that the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has given us so much more quality time together. It is so nice to not have to either be interrupted every few minutes by an unwanted phone call from someone trying to sell something that we are not interested in or have to take the phone off the hook and risk not being able to get phone calls from family and friends that we do want to hear from. If there is something we want to spend our hard earned money on, we will do the calling or go shopping for it.

Since Indiana's law has been in effect we can count on one hand the number of sales calls we have received. This has been 11 months now and we have gotten less than one call a month when we used to get at least 6 calls in an evening! We feel very strongly about protecting Indiana's Telephone Privacy law. It has made our lives so much less stressful. People should have the right to say "no" to unwanted telephone calls.
